

'The Other Boleyn Girl'

Peter Morgan

(Mary has given birth to the King's son, out of wedlock, whilst the conniving Anne has seduced him herself)

Mary: How can you show your face in here?

Anne: I understand you're angry – but be assured. I did nothing, except remind him of you.

Mary: Oh, spare me. You did this deliberately, as revenge.
(a beat)

And now you have what you wanted you probably think justice has been done.

Anne: Well, hasn't it?

Mary: Be careful, that's my advice. Learn from my experience. Because he'll only do to you what he has already done to me.

Anne: Never. I'll make sure he understands I'm a greater thing by far. That he can never have me until he makes me a far greater offer.
