Adapted Scene from 'Good Will Hunting'
Matt Damon and Ben Affleck

Sky: I want you to come to California with me.

Will: Well, I can't go to California.

Sky: Why not?

Will: One, because I've a job here, and two: because I live here.

Sky: Look, um – if you don't love me you should just tell me, because –

Will: I'm not saying I don't love you.

Sky: Then why? Why won't you come? What are you so scared of?

Will: What am I so scared of?

Sky: Well, what aren't you scared of? You live in your safe little world where no-one challenges you, and you're scared shitless to do anything that would mean you have to change.

Will: Don't. Don't. Don't tell me about my world! I mean, you just want a fling with, like, the guy from the other side of town, and then you're going to go off to college, you're going to marry some rich prick your parents will approve of, and just sit around with all the other trust fund babies, and talk about how you went slumming once too.

Sky: Why are you saying that? What is your obsession with this money? My father died when I was thirteen and I inherited that money. You don't think I wake up every single day and wish I could give it back – that I would give it back in a second if I could have one more day with him. But I can't. And that's life. And I deal with it. So, don't put your shit on me when you're the one that's afraid.

Will: I'm afraid? What am I afraid of? What the fuck am I afraid of?

Sky: You're afraid of me. You're afraid I won't love you back. And you know what - I'm afraid too. But fuck it, I want to give it a shot. And at least I'm honest with you.

Will: I'm not honest with you?

Sky: I love you. I want to hear you say you don't love me. Because if you say that, then I won't call you. I won't be in your life.

Will: I don't love you.
